

English 323
Dante
Spring 2011
T-Th, 3:00-4:20
Hoover 202

Professor Wendy Furman-Adams
Office: Hoover 215
Phones: 907-4896; 693-7491
Office Hours: T-Th, 11:00-12:30;
W, 1:30-3:00; and by appointment
Email: wfurman@whittier.edu

Even in our era of a vastly expanding canon, Dante Alighieri (1265-1321) is one of a handful of writers who make up the virtually undisputed "greats" of European literature. In a still-important twentieth-century essay, T. S. Eliot exaggerated only slightly when he wrote, "Dante and Shakespeare divide the modern world between them; there is no third. . . . The majority of poems one outgrows and outlives, as one outgrows and outlives the majority of human passions. Dante is one of those which one can only just hope to grow up to at the end of life" ("Dante," in Selected Essays [Faber and Faber, 1932]). Dante's epic journey through Hell, Purgatory, and Paradise is most profoundly a journey inward, a journey in which all human beings are in some sense inevitably engaged. Eliot himself, in fact, described the Wasteland of twentieth-century London in lines borrowed directly from Dante's Inferno (Canto III):

Unreal City;
Under the brown fog of a winter dawn,
A crowd flowed over London Bridge, so many,
I had not thought death had undone so many.
Sighs, short and infrequent, were exhaled,
And each man fixed his eyes before his feet.

But if Dante's Commedia is (at least from an "essentialist" perspective) in some sense perpetually "relevant" to our lives, it is also the supreme literary reflection of a particular time and place--a time and place far remote from our own: Florence, Italy, ca. 1300. Dante sets his masterpiece during Easter Week of that year, and continually alludes to contemporary figures and events. Dante's Europe was politically volatile, and the Commedia is on one level a thoroughly political work. Its huge cast of characters includes the popes, emperors, and nobles both of the past and of the poet's own day; and all three canticles are full of allusions to parties and debates, quarrels, schisms and battles that were of immediate importance to Dante himself.

In the midst of its nearly perpetual turmoil, however, Europe was also undergoing a great cultural renaissance. Dante was immersed not only in the politics of his time, but also in its welter of secular and religious ideas. As a lay philosopher, he responded to virtually all the issues of scholastic philosophy--to Plato and St. Augustine, to Aristotle and St. Thomas Aquinas. As the leading poet and literary humanist of his day, he took an enormous and conscious role in the rise of Italian vernacular poetry; and, writing his Vita Nuova and Paradiso within the European vernacular tradition called "l'amour courtois," or "courtly love," he transformed that tradition in ways that echo (however quietly) into the twenty-first century.

Dante also lived in the decades of Giotto's new naturalism in painting, and mentions the artist, among others, in his Commedia. His was the golden age of Italian Gothic architecture, and his masterpiece is often seen as the great poetic embodiment of the "Gothic Spirit"--imbued, like the great Florentine churches that were new in his lifetime, with all the dynamic tensions of a thirteenth-century cathedral. The Commedia, then, is a fourteenth-century poetic Summa Theologica, a love poem, and a political manifesto. It is also a poetic cathedral--one with soaring and elaborate architecture; dazzling portraiture of the living and the dead, the blessed and the damned, as well as of the Lady and Lord of the Heavenly court. Also like a Gothic cathedral, it is a work of diversity in unity, with a place for both gargoyles and rose windows; deep darkness and unfathomable light. Inspired by painters and architects of his day, Dante in turn inspired painters and architects--so much so that in "reading" medieval and Renaissance art, it is often hard to tell a biblical scene from a scene imagined by Dante.

Thus, in order to understand Dante's great poem, we must read it, at least to some extent, within its historical matrix--glancing at the development of medieval Christianity; at medieval political life; at scholastic philosophy; at Gothic architecture; and the "system" (however fictional) of chivalry and courtly love. All these aspects of European civilization illuminate Dante's thought and work. We will see that the Commedia can be read as a historical, and an art-historical text--demonstrating vividly what a brilliant fourteenth-century mind made of the political, intellectual and aesthetic data of his time and place. But above all we will explore the poem's canticles as Dante explored Hell, Purgatory, and Paradise: as places on a journey into the remarkably familiar--and ever human--mind and heart.

Required Texts:

Dante Alighieri. Vita Nuova, trans. Mark Musa. Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 1973.

_____. The Divine Comedy, trans. John Ciardi. New York: Penguin, 2003.

In addition you will be required to purchase and read a notebook of hand-outs and shorter readings (SR). On days for which you have an assignment in this book, be sure to bring it to class.

Required Work:

- (1) Prompt and regular attendance at all class sessions. If you must miss a class, you should get class notes from another student and include them in your notebook with proper acknowledgment. (Roll will be taken, and final grades dropped one step--e.g. from a B to a C--for each absence after the first two. Thus six absences may be regarded as grounds for failure of the course.)
- (2) Reading assignments to be completed--including written response--before the dates for which they are assigned (i.e. in time for class discussion).
- (3) Notebook (as described below).
- (4) Satisfactory completion of two exams: a midterm and a comprehensive final.
- (5) Four response papers (3-4 pages each)--on issues of interest to you in La Vita Nuova and in each canticle of the Commedia.
- (6) A comprehensive final exam.

Reading Notebook: The Record of your Journey

Since the course will be run largely on a discussion basis, it is essential that you read the assigned material closely and carefully before each class session, and keep a notebook (ideally one you will want to keep for the rest of your life) that includes the following:

- (1) reading notes, in which you jot down the plot, along with key images and ideas, from each canto or chapter--and any questions you may want to raise about it;
- (2) class notes, summarizing the main ideas discussed (by other students as well as the professor);
- (3) personal commentary, giving your reactions, thoughts, and questions about both the readings and the ideas discussed. This commentary will serve not only for class discussion but as the raw material for your response papers.

You may organize these sections however you wish, but you may find it useful to divide each page into two sections, so as to carry on a "dialogue" with the course. Example:

Commentary to be added
later upon further reflection and/or in preparation for exams

Reading or class notes (dated and identified)

Your notebook will be due at the end of the course for review by the professor; before each examination it should be shared with another student "pilgrim," who will also add comments. Thus your writing will have a double audience and purpose: it must "communicate" first with yourself, but second--and significantly--with others, about your experience in the course.

Grading Factors:

(1) Attendance, preparation, and discussion	5
(2) Notebook	15
(3) Midterm	15
(4) Response Papers (10% each)	40
(5) Final exam	25
	100%

Grading Options:

1. A - F
2. Credit/No Credit (non-majors only)

Note: All work must be turned in, and of a passing quality (even if it is turned in so late as to have fallen--theoretically--to an F), in order to result in a passing grade in the course.

Work will be regarded as "on time" if it is handed in at the beginning of class or appears in my mailbox by 5:00 on the day it is due. Late work will be accepted, but will be marked down one third of a grade (e.g. from a B to a B-) for each school day (not class day) after the due date. It is much better, however, to turn in a paper a bit late than to miss a class or arrive late in order to complete it.

Extensions without penalty are occasionally considered--provided (1) that I am consulted in advance and (2) that the circumstances seem serious enough to warrant such an extension. (A documented illness or three papers due on the same day are examples of such circumstances.) No penalty-free extensions will be granted after the fact or even at the last minute (e.g. by e-mail the night before). The point is to anticipate difficulties and make plans in advance to address them. This includes seeking help on papers (which I strongly encourage!) near the beginning of each assignment period.

Manuscript Style:

Papers are to be typed double-space in a 12-point font (this syllabus is typed in 10-point Times), and printed on a laser-quality printer. They should be handed in on separate sheets of 8 1/2 X 11 paper (although using both sides is encouraged), which are stapled in the upper left-hand corner. Margins should be one inch; paragraphs are to be indented five spaces. Spaces should not be skipped between paragraphs. Any notes or bibliography you may want to use must follow the MLA Handbook, summarized on the Library's Website and in any handbook you might have purchased for your college writing seminar.

Always keep hard-copies of all your work. Documents can get lost--both from my desk and from your screen, disks, and thumb drives. Should this occur, I will expect you to be able to produce a copy immediately; otherwise, I will be forced to count the paper as late beginning with the original due date. (See above for general policy on late papers.)

Note: Electronically submitted work will not be accepted in lieu of a printed copy. It is your responsibility to leave enough time to submit a clean hard copy for evaluation. (I may ask you to submit your work via Moodle/Turn-it-in in addition to this hard copy--but not instead.)

Academic Honesty:

Plagiarism occurs whenever the true author of a piece of prose, of an idea, or of a line of thought is not the person who claims to be the author. Plagiarism can occur in varying degrees, and will be penalized--in this class as in all others at the college--in proportion to its severity. Papers in which plagiarism is sufficiently serious will receive an F, and student's name will be turned in to the Dean of Students. A repeated act of plagiarism will result in an automatic F in the entire course, in addition to any action taken by the Office of Student Life (which can include suspension from the College). A number of such serious sanctions have been imposed in recent years.

Please be aware that faculty have the tools to identify any work unfairly borrowed from the Web, as well as other sources.

If you are in doubt about the need for documentation of borrowed material, please feel free to consult me or any other professor on campus. Also be sure that you have mastered the material in the 2009-2011 College Catalog, 28-30. Ignorance of this material will not be regarded as an excuse.

Classroom Policies and Etiquette:

Preparation and Participation: Our class meetings are only as good as your preparation and your willingness to engage in mature, enthusiastic, and intelligent discussions about these challenging texts. You are expected to read all the materials for class, to have you your notebook and annotated text with you, to have your own questions prepared, and to use class discussion as an opportunity to deepen your own understanding and that of others. While it is often valuable to express personal insights and opinions, those insights and opinions, in order to be of genuine use, must be grounded in a close and careful reading of the text at hand. If you have not done the reading, and done so carefully, you will serve the community better with your silence than with your speech.

Punctuality and Maturity: It is also essential to arrive to class on time and to remain in the classroom until the end of the session. Nothing is less conducive to concentration than people wandering in and out of class to check text messages, grab a bite, use the restroom, etc. Adults are generally capable of sitting in one place for ninety minutes. If this is not possible for you (barring a sudden case of food poisoning or something else of that magnitude and rarity), please speak to me in advance.

Food and Drink: Feel free to bring water or another non-alcoholic beverage to class. Since we meet near the end of the afternoon, it should not be necessary to bring food into the classroom.

Electronic Devices: The use of laptops, cell phones, and other electronic equipment will not be tolerated. Leave these items at home or turn them off and stow them entirely out of sight in the classroom. With the help of Disability Services, exceptions can be negotiated for students who require technology for help with learning or other disabilities. But these negotiations need to take place in advance of any classroom use.

Office Hours and E-mail: Whittier faculty set aside a remarkable number of hours per week to meet with students in their offices--and most of us much prefer such face-to-face interaction. Such interaction is not only more in keeping with our Quaker values, but is more efficient as well. I offer office hours by appointment in addition to my regularly scheduled hours, in order to make this interaction possible for students, and it is one of the "values added" of a Whittier education.

Nonetheless, a trend has developed lately toward e-mail as many students' preferred method of interaction with faculty, and sometimes work schedules, etc., make such interaction necessary. If you must use e-mail (preferably in addition to personal contact), please consider your audience and treat your e-mails as the professional correspondence they actually are. You can help your case immensely with a truly descriptive entry on the subject line (not just "Hello") and with an appropriate salutation (e.g. "Dear Professor Furman-Adams"). For most professors, either "Dr." or "Professor" is appropriate: one indicates rank, the other degree. "Hey there!" is never the way to address a professor (and "Mrs." "Miss" both have problems that I'd be happy to explain).

I will do my best to respond promptly to your requests, questions, and concerns. But I cannot guarantee a response over the week-end or after the end of the regular school day (about 5:00 p.m.). And, with the volume of e-mail I now receive each day, I cannot be expected to download and respond to drafts of a paper. Drafts need to be brought in person during office hours.

ADA Policy:

If you have any disabling condition that may require some special arrangements in order to meet course requirements, please begin by contacting the Office of Disability Services, located on the ground floor of the Library (extension 4825). I will be happy to provide any accommodations regarded by the Director as appropriate, but am not in a position to offer such accommodations independently. Short of actual accommodations, however, please feel welcome to talk with me about anything I can do to help you succeed in the course.

The Final Exam:

The final examination will be given only at the published time, so plan your departure for the summer accordingly. Plane tickets purchased by students not consulting the schedule (or not informing their families of the schedule) will not be accepted as an excuse for missing (or rescheduling) the exam. If you should find yourself scheduled for three final exams on a single day, you are (as the Catalog notes) entitled to request an adjustment from your professors.

The Schedule:

I. Backgrounds to Dante's Commedia.

January

27 Introduction to the course: visualizing Dante's Florence and reconstructing his intellectual universe (SR, 1-11).

February

1 "Courtly Love" and the dolce stil nuovo (SR, 12-39).

3 Read Vita Nuova, Musa, 3-86, and Vita Nuova Introduction (SR, 40-42). Recommended: Musa's essay, 87-179.

8 La Vita Nuova; introduction to La Commedia. Read "Allegory in the Commedia" and selections from Dante's "Letter to Can Grande della Scala" (SR, 43-49) and Inferno, Canto 1 (16-22): The Dark Wood of Error. Also see SR, 50.

II. La Commedia (1): Inferno.

10 Inferno, Cantos 2-4 (23-45): The Descent; the Vestibule of Hell; the Virtuous Pagans.

15 Inferno, Cantos 5-8 (46-73): The Hell of the She-Wolf: the Circle of the Carnal; the Gluttons, the Hoarders and Wasters; the Wrathful and Sullen; the River Styx. Also see SR, 52-55.

17 Inferno, Cantos 9-12 (74-103): The Hell of the Lion: the City of Dis; the Heretics; the Circle of the Violent: (1) against Neighbors. First response paper due.

22 Inferno, Cantos 13-17 (104-39): The Violent: (2) against Self; (3) against God, Nature and Art; Geryon and the Descent to the Hell of the Leopard: the Fraudulent and Malicious.

24 Inferno, Cantos 18-22 (141-79): Malebolge--the Panders and Seducers; Flatterers; Simoniacs; Fortune Tellers and Diviners; the Grafters ("Gargoyle Cantos").

March

1 Inferno, Cantos 23-30 (180-239): The Hypocrites; the Thieves; the Evil Counselors; the Sowers of Discord; the Falsifiers. Also see SR, 56.

3 Inferno, Cantos 31-34 (240-70): The Central Pit of Hell. Also see SR, 57.

8 Midterm examination on the Vita Nuova and the Inferno.

III. La Commedia (2): Purgatorio.

10 Purgatorio, Cantos 1-4 (273-319): The Shore of Purgatory and the beginning of the ascent; Ante-Purgatory--the Late Repentant (1). Second response paper due. Also see SR, 58.

15 Purgatorio, Cantos 5-9 (320-65): The Late Repentant; the Negligent Rulers and the Gate of Purgatory.

17 Purgatorio, Cantos 10-15 (366-418): The Cornices of the Proud and the Envious.

22 Purgatorio, Cantos 16-19 (419-51): The Cornices of the Wrathful and the Slothful.

24 Purgatorio, Cantos 20-24 (452-99): The Cornices of the Avaricious and the Gluttonous. Review SR, 50 and compare to Statius's story.

Spring Break, March 26-April 3

April

5 Purgatorio, Cantos 25-30 (500-553): The Cornice of the Lustful and Dante's ascent to moral and spiritual freedom; the Earthly Paradise; the Heavenly Pageant; the disappearance of Virgil and the revelation of Beatrice. Also see SR, 59.

7 Purgatorio, Cantos 31-33 (554-81): Beatrice's rebuke and Dante's confession; the masque of the Church Militant; Dante's final purification.

IV. La Commedia (3): Paradiso.

12 Paradiso, Cantos 1-4 (585-629): Dante's Ascent to Heaven; the Sphere of the Moon--the Inconstant. Third response paper due. Also see SR, 60.

14 Paradiso, Cantos 5-9 (630-76): The Sphere of Mercury--the Seekers of Honor; the Sphere of Venus--the Amorous.

19 Paradiso, Cantos 10-14 (677-720): The Sphere of the Sun--the Doctors of the Church; the ascent to Mars.

21 Paradiso, Cantos 15-20 (721-76): The Sphere of Mars--the Warriors of God; the Sphere of Jupiter--the Just Rulers.

26 Paradiso, Cantos 21-26 (777-832): The Sphere of Saturn--the Contemplatives; the Sphere of the Fixed Stars; the Garden of Christ's Triumph; Dante's examinations in Faith, Hope, and Love. Also see SR, 61-63.

28 Paradiso, Cantos 27-29 (833-59): The Primum Mobile and the Orders of Angels.

May

3 Paradiso, Cantos 30-33 (860-95): The Empyrean; the River of Light; the Mystic Rose; and Vision of God.

4 (Wednesday) Reading Day. Optional review session. Fourth response paper due.

6 (Friday) 1:00-3:00 p.m. Final Exam. Notebooks due (to be read during the exam and returned either at the end of the period or by campus mail).